

Carlingford Catchment Conversations

Over the past two years, the EU Interreg ALICE Project has provided local stakeholders with the space to think about the future of Carlingford Catchment.

Join us for the last in our workshop series for all interested in the way we look after land and water in the catchment.

SESSION 1

Discover the Bigger Picture

Insight from the ALICE Project

10.30am-12.00pm
22 February 2021

Carlingford Catchment was chosen as one of four locations around Europe to benefit from development of new, state-of-the-art digital maps. These have been created to help you explore how changes in the way we look after land and water can benefit us all, especially in the face of climate change. Join this session to get a preview of these fantastic resources. Tell us what you think!

SESSION 2

Inform Better Local Decisions

A new Toolkit for Carlingford Catchment

1.30pm-3.00pm
24 February 2021

Given all that everyone knows about how the catchment works, there are opportunities to change the way we look after it. New resources could be found to help. A 'tool kit' of nature-based solutions is being drafted right now. Join this session to discover what is currently in this tool kit and share your thoughts. Help to improve the catchment, hectare by hectare.

Photo Competition

Your chance to see the big picture.
Your chance to take the big picture.

Share with us your photos of the Carlingford Catchment that illustrate the following theme of 'An environment that serves people and nature'. These can be landscape images, farming, wildlife, activities...share your favourite places with us! The best photos will be displayed proudly in the forthcoming toolkit being developed as a part of the second workshop session. A selection of ALICE branded goodies will also be given as a prize.

All photos must be taken within Carlingford Catchment (email below to request map if needed). Please indicate whether you are willing for the ALICE Project to use your photo, and whose name we should give as the photo credit. Maximum of two entries per person. If the photo has been taken by someone under 18, please state their age.

Please send entries to: alice.stakeholders@afbini.gov.uk
